Texas Mutual President and CEO elected to NCCI 2025 Board of Directors

AUSTIN, Texas—Jeanette Ward, president and CEO of Texas Mutual Insurance Company, has been elected as one of the insurer members on the National Council on Compensation Insurance 2025 Board of Directors. NCCI is the nation's most comprehensive source for workers' compensation data, insights and solutions, aiming to foster a healthy workers' compensation system.

"I'm honored to serve on the NCCI Board of Directors and contribute to the organization's vital role in shaping a data-driven and equitable workers' compensation system," said Ward. "NCCI's work to analyze trends, recommend actuarially appropriate rates and maintain the workers' compensation infrastructure is essential to maintaining a fair and sustainable system. I look forward to supporting this mission and bringing Texas Mutual's perspective to the national conversation."

Ward was named president and CEO of Texas Mutual in 2023 and has since led with purpose and vision. She drives strategic direction, oversees operations and fosters a culture of commitment to safety, service and innovation in the workers' compensation industry.

Outside of her role at Texas Mutual, Ward has a deep commitment to community involvement, including leadership roles with the American Heart Association, United Way, Early Matters Greater Austin and the Insurance Industry Charitable Foundation. She uses her platforms and organizational involvement to further strategic partnerships and champion issues like workforce readiness, child care and economic mobility, aligning business operations with pressing societal needs.
